When the new well is connected at Water and Main Sts., the pressure from it will speed up the circulation of water in the system, it is believed, and there will be less accumulation of the mineral sediment.

The new well was drilled near one of the three small wells which have supplied water from west, and a mile and a quarter north and south. Water formations were struck on two levels, at 90 feet and 270 feet. Under air pressure, the new well delivers at a rate of 120 gallons a minute. Browsing through a book of English verse the other night, we came upon Walter De La Mare's "The Listeners", a poem which recalled a rush of memories. Perhaps you remember it: "Is there anybody there?" said the Traveller,

"Knocking on the moonlit door,

"And his horse in silence champed the grasses "Of the forest's ferny floor."

The poem tells how the Traveller "smote upon the door" a second time but still no one answered. And how he smote on the door "even louder" and still no one answered. "Tell them I came and no one answer'd,

"That I kept my word,' he said." How the words echoed through the still house "from the one man left awake". How the Traveller booted his horse and was off.

"And how the silence surged softly backward,

"When the plunging hoofs were gone."

What endless schooltime debates there were over the meaning of the poem. Who was the Traveller? Who was the "one man left awake?" As we remember, the teacher was puzzled as the students were. One class had written the author, he told us, but he didn't tell us what the answer, if any, was. So we spent, it seemed, endless hours puzzling over the verse, no doubt reading into it signifigance that the author had never thought of. It was a foolish waste of time, trying to dissect a poem as you would a frog on the lab table. Poems-the good ones-aren't written that way, but of course we didn't know that then and the board of education, for reasons of its own, preferred to keep us in ignorance.

It wasn't until years afterwards that we realized that a poem is not what you read but what you read into it, and that to pigeon-hole a poem like a new species of insect is to subtract its worth.

We are going to Midland tonight to see as much as we can of the Tercentenary observances at the Martyr's Shrine. We wrote of the plans for this celebration in this column last week, remarking particularly on the fact that this will be a purely Canadian event. Three hundred years ago, the Iroquois descended upon Huronia and reduced that nation, which existed around Georgian Bay, to ashes. The Jesuits, who had built missions there and had advanced a long way towards civilizing (as the term was then understood) the Huron Indians, were slain, and their work destroyed. Theme of the Tercentenary observances is "out of the ashes of a seemingly conquered nation of Huronia arose our glorious Canada."

From a special insert in the Midland Free Press Herald with news of the celebration we read that a Canadian Little Symphony under the direction of Harold Sumberg will provide the music. Other artists taking part in the four-night production include dancers of the Volkoff Canadian ballet, soprano Louise Roy, coloratura soprano Mary McDonald, tenor Joseph Laderoute, and others. We hope to give you a first hand report of this Canadian performance in succeeding

The Editorials:

Can Still Talk Ourselves Into Depression

It is poker etiquette for the players to announce at the end of their game that "they just broke even" or that "they lost on the night". It is a fashion which fools no one, least of all the man who tried to bluff a pair of jacks against three of a kind. Some businessmen are a good deal like the poker players. Ask them how business is and they give you a sad recital of mounting costs and declining volume. The listener can only conclude that they are teetering on the edge of bankruptcy.

Costs are mounting, and volume, in some lines, is declining as the impetus of the post-war buying spree is lost. Gone are the carefree days of the sellers' market. There are import restrictions to contend with, and the nagging worry of Canada's dollar position. But none of these factors excuse the growing talk of retrenchment, and cut-backs, and depression.

They tell the story of a hot dog merchant who had a little roadside stand on the highway. Every day, he cried his wares to the passing motorists and his trade grew. Soon he was able to double his order for buns and put up a sign on his new premises. He worked hard at his business and it continued to grow. He was able to send his son to college where he studied industry and commerce. When the son graduated, he returned to the hog dog stand but he was discouraged. "There is a depression on," he told his father. "A depression? What is that?" asked the father. "Business has failed all over," the son said. "The things they learn at college," reflected the father, and he stopped crying his wares at the roadside, took down his new sign, fired his help, and reduced his bun order. "Now we have depression too," he said happily.

That's just about the size of it. Depression talk leads to depression thinking. Business has its difficulties, but they are not grounds for the "panic" talk which one hears so frequently, and they are not going to be improved by the constant harping on them some businessmen indulge in. If there are difficulties, there are also plenty of advantages which are forgotten by the pessimists as they talk themselves into failure.

D.P.'s Anti-Communist Force

There have been several reports of New Canadians being attacked by men identified as communists. There is a good reason for it. New Canadians coming here from countries under communist domination are proving a potent anti-communist force among native-born Canadians of the same extraction who have been persuaded by communist propaganda. The communists are finding that their influence among minority groups in Canada is waning as a result of the first-hand reports on the communist rule which New Canadians are telling here.

The communists have made a determined effort to "convert" New Canadians to their beliefs. In their ignorance of their new home, many New Canadians and first generation Canadians in minority groups have been persuaded to communist support. As the communist reign has spread in Europe, many of the New Canadians now arriving in this country come as much as political refugees as they do immigrants seeking new opportunities in a new land. Having witnessed the communist terror, they are doing all they can to prevent a repetition of it in Canada, and their efforts are bearing fruit as witness the desperate effort the communists are making to silence them.

More On Sediment Nuisance

Reeve Arthur D. Evans, chairman of the water committee of the Newmarket town council, tells us, apropos an editorial in July 21 issue suggesting filters to reduce the nuisance of sediment in the water pipes, that filters have been installed on the Srigley St. intake, and that his committee is searching for a still more effective means to prevent accumulations of sediment.

In the editorial, we remarked on the smelly, dirty water from taps when mains in the vicinity have been disturbed by flushing, or repairs and additions to the system. The cause of the sediment is the heavy mineral content of the water. Reeve Evans tells us that there has been some improvement since filters were attached, but the real difficulty is in the numerous dead-ends in the water system, and the many small pipes which at one time served isolated homes. The sediment more readily collects in the dead-ends and smaller pipes.

Reeve Evans says that as the occasion arises, the small pipes and dead-ends are being eliminated and as this work progresses, the sediment nuisance should

Another Opinion On Allowances

In an editorial series two weeks ago, we discussed the dependence of 20th Century man on such measures as family allowances, subsidies, unemployment insurance, etc. Our conclusions were that although paternalism is contrary to the principle of true democracy, the very complexity and specialism of this age has made the people increasingly dependent upon the government to an extent that a government must give this assistance or be voted out of power.

The following article by Mr. R. J. Deachman, journalist and economist of Ottawa, gives another view on the same general subject in answer to the question: Do family allowances increase the national income?

By R. J. DEACHMAN

From a Western businessman I have a brief note which reads as follows: "All things considered is Canada, as a whole, better or worse off by paying family allowances?"

That's a direct question; it deserves a direct answer. The payment of family allowances means simply the transfer of purchasing power from one section of the community to the other. It would indeed be difficult to see how the total income could be increased by this process.

The case can be stated clearly if we reduce the size of the problem. Here are 1,000 families-they decide to tax themselves in order to increase the purchasing power of those who have children within a certain age limit. It is quite impossible to see how, by this process, the total income of the group is thereby increased.

Family allowances may be quite popular, kind hearted people feel that it may help the children of the poor but there is no proof that this will be the general pattern. Much of the money is used for other purposes-some of it is wasted. Then we have to realize that the out-pouring of purchasing power in the form of a gift is definitely inflationary—it increases purchasing power without a corresponding increase in production. This would be particlarly true during a period of full employment such as we have had in the last few years.

In spending public money the primary consideration should be: Is this the best possible use to which this money can be applied. The cost of family allowances is estimated at approximately $271 million for 1948-19. It will soon exceed $300 million per year. With the coming of war we threw away our former conception of money values. This is more than double the federal government expenditures in 1913, the year before the outbreak of World War I. It is equivalent to 50% of our total expenditure in the fiscal year, ending March 31, 1939.

An equivalent sum expended for the general benefit of the Dominion of Canada would have done much to strengthen our economic position and buttress the nation against depression. In research we are only touching the fringe of the unknown. The billion dollar expenditures on family allowances, if directed along right lines, would have been of tremendous value to Canada. The horizon broadens with the years, great things have been accomplished, but we have only started.

There are two schools of thought in Canada today. One, the most vocal, wants redistribution of the existing national income, the other, more vital as a factor in human progress, wants to build for tomorrow. That is the true goal of humanity, the vision which should lead us onward and upward.

What is the effect of family allowances in the Dominion of Canada? They do not stimulate production, they do not increase the national income, they tend to reduce it. They obscure the problems of the lower income groups. They reflect the point of view of those who believe that state aid solves every probtem—it serves only to create more.

The state is the servant, not the master; of the people; the state is their guarantee against infringement on their rights, their agent in international and national issues; it is not the function of the state to assume the direction of those activities which rest on individual choice.

Office Cat reports Catnips By Ginger

Bear's Shinbone Junction-Friday, July 21 (Special)-Well, boss, it seems that we have been gone for a year and frankly I am not missing the old aweat shop in the least. I hope that you have not had any trouble with insurgent printers or with that office girl having any nervous breakdowns,

We have been catching all kinds of pike, pickerel, trout and stomach 'flu. Nothing like the north country, I always Yesterday me and my apple dumpling went searching in an old Indian burial ground. She said she wanted an eye tooth or any arrow head to take home as a souvenir. "I think Indian lore is one of my favorite lores," says Isabella.

After scratching about in some earthen mounds, Isabella emitted the war cry of the Black Feet to show that she had found something. Sure enough she had found what looked to be a six year molar with that pepsodent sparkle which I attributed to wind and sand erosion.

"It's probably that of an Iroquois warrior killed in battle," cried Isabella enraptured over some forgotten savage drama she invented in her mind.

"We'll take it to Limehouse Lou," I said. "He will confirm it." Limehouse Lou is an old Indian up here who says he is a nephew of one of the chiefs who sat in on Custer's last stand. He lives up the lake a bit from us and traps what's left of the fur bearing creatures and trades his pelts for such things as flour, salt, sugar and shaving lotion. At Limehouse Lou's tent, Isabella presented the tooth to him and asked, "Heap tooth Iroquois or Huron?" Limehouse Lou turned the molar over and over squinting at it and muttering to himself. "Heap tooth that of old dead moose," Limehouse said.

As I said, boss, we have been catching all kinds of pike, pickerel and things and we have just been having a grand

There has been one exception to this bush life, boss, one dismal, mundane exception, a corruption of our civilization that I had hoped to do without for two weeks. And lo, it reared its ugly head right in these woods to mar the natural grandeur found in this bush country. Contract bridge has found its way, away up here, boss.

I had taken great pains to see that a pack of cards did not get into our luggage before we left and we did get away without them. If it hadn't been for that Hudson's Bay post two miles back of us I would have been free of it. One morning we went over to the post for some provisions and there were four Indians playing contract bridge on the doorstep. This Bay post manager had been selling cards to the Indians! They talk about how the early traders scalped the Indians by selling them fire water; it had nothing on this corruption!

To top it off, boss, Isabella invited the Bay post manager and his wife over for an evening of bridge. In all that wilderness. You can imagine the anguish I suffered. Or can you?

Well, boss, I hope you are not overworking yourself like you did me. Send me some more arrowroot biscuits and advance me my $1.84 for my next two weeks' pay please. Hope you are the same,

Prosperity or austerity—the daily press news on the dol-

by "Back Concession" The Top Six Inches

lar problem started at the first of the week with a 25-percent cut in exports. But this would not make any difference to jobs in Canada. In the middle of the week they were not so sure about this. At the end of the week negotiations were breaking down and the dollar problem would affect every Canadian. The same day an article asked U.S.A. businessmen to stop talking themselves into a depression. Fear has taken hold of the people. What affects the States also affects Canada. We fear that we will not have a job to earn money to live and have some security in old age and in case of sickness. We do not fear today but tomorrow and the future. Two men start out. One spends all he earns. This is good for business. The other saves part of his earnings for sickness and old age, while the other in old age and sickness must depend on the state. This is not fair. The saying that the country owes one a living and all one has to do is collect it, does not go now. People are getting fed up with security for some at the expense of others. Our new government has pledged that they will give contributory old-age and hospital security. In our youth we can look after ourselves but in sickness and old age we must depend on others. Is there any reason why all members of our local political parties could not work together on this new system? We work in churches, lodges and service groups for the welfare of all. When can we say to people "your old age and sickness is taken care of?" We have in Canada goods and services that we cannot sell. It is up to the people to spend their money, not to save it. Let us all go on a spending spree. Every home in Canada could use more clothes, food, furniture, etc., without waste. On the farm, we could "go to town" on spending, spray-guns to paint our farm buildings, wire fence with steel posts, clean out the fence rows, plant good trees, instead of weed trees, two pressure systems, hard and soft water. Why we have not enough people in Canada to work to provide the demand.

There are those who put profits before everything. There will have to be a little curb on profits. Some may say. what a wild, silly thing to think about.

What we are trying to do now does not add up too well. In Europe, before the war, there was a very poor standard of living. The war did not help. We lent those people money to help them get started again. Now they have no money to buy our goods and we do not want to trade for what they have. We cannot get money from people who have none. The press took a whole week to tell us where we are heading. Why waste time trying to get money where there is none? We have a real market right at home for all we can produce. There are those that would like to see our country slide into a depression just so that they could say, "I told you so." In the army there was nothing that could not be done; even to building a dock and placing it on a shore where it was considered that the tide could not be controlled. We have the same brains with us today. And yet it looks as though we won't be able to handle a little thing like keeping our people at work.

The press suggests that we bring people over here to help relieve the condition in Europe. What have we on the farm to offer new citizens? A long day's work and at the end of the day when they are good and dirty, hand them a bucket of cold water for a bath out in the back shed. Cheerlo.

(MISSIONARY MEETING)

IT'S A Woman's World

BY CAROLINE E. ION

If the copy drips a little this week, it's just that we are following to the letter, the "easy-to-follow suggestions for looking and keeping cool" as described in the August issue of "Holiday". Our feet are soaking in a tub of tepid water. On our eyes we have placed eye pads. It's proving quite tricky to balance these ice cubes on our wrists as we type (that's "to cool your blood stream") and frankly we are quite worn out struggling with the ice cube trays. No doubt the Toni Robin who planned this anti-sweltering campaign had a fleet of servants to administer the ice for the varied program. Oh, just a minute, have to fill the bowl with ice cubes again -that's the one that the fan blows over in an effort to provide air-conditioning the cheap way.

This business of keeping cool has become highly scientific. No longer can one just relax in the shade and enjoy a good book. No, you have to "slather your body with iceboxchilled cologne"; "use a bracing astringent"; "cut hair in new becoming styles, as short hair is cool"; have "several tepid showers a day"; "have a cup of hot soup with your meals"now, is it any wonder that we are beginning in these last stages of exhaustion to feel slightly water-logged? Sorry, have to leave now-going swimming at the lake.

An International Festival of documentary films will again be a feature of the International Festival of Music and Drama in Edinburgh from August 21 to September 11. Films will be shown daily throughout the three weeks and will include The Loon's Necklace, winner of the Canadian Film Award this year, and the National Film Board's entry, The Parent. At last year's festival, 130 films from 25 countries were shown, and from information already supplied, it is clear that there is even greater international interest in this year's event.

As this is the only international festival devoted to documentary films, the prestige value of exhibiting at Edinburgh is coveted by producers throughout the world. In addition to the major film-producing countries represented last year, inquiries have been received from Mexico and Turkey, two countries not previously represented.

We might call this next item, "A dog's point of view" for when we returned to the typewriter our pooch, Val by name, was busy pouring out his woes to the world. "Since that office cat, Ginger, is away, I thought it would be a good time to get a few of my beefs aired," he said. "That's fine," I replied. "Let's see what you've written." (And here it is.)

Life was beautiful—two good meals a day and a succulent bone-that's if someone did not forget. It didn't take much practice to keep my few tricks of the trade up to par and a vigorous wagging of the tail was all that seemed to be necessary for me to receive my fair share of attention from all members of the family and then it happens-they bring home a cat. Not a decent black or grey one, but a patch-workquilt-model. It has a black eye and part of its nose is black. Here and there are streaks of white and tawny fur. Why, it's almost as wide as it is long. To hear the folks rave about it you would really think that they had a prize possession. Not that I'm jealous, mind you. In comes the boss and says, 'Look, Val, a new sister for you'. I always thought that one was supposed to be warned ahead of time about these new additions to the family; but no, nobody took me aside to help make plans for the arrival of a 'Sister for Val',

I wouldn't mind so much if it would only play with me a bit. There it sleeps in its own small basket (they even got a tiny pillow for it) and wakes up for long drinks of warmed milk. It can't even run properly. First it starts to the right and then the hind legs take to the left and there it is, after its own tail. Can't go near it without someone warning, 'Now be careful, Val', or 'Remember, Val, you're a big dog'. Gee, I'm only eight months old. Can I help it if I'm half the size of a horse-almost? Well, it's plain to see that I'll just have to let Vickie (that is what they named it-short for Victoria Elizabeh, I believe), scrach my nose and bite my tail-guess the world is generally going to the cats.

Kenny was preoccupied with a half-finished to tem pole when the superintendent greeted him. "I want to finish this totem pole before we have to go home, but Ron says I have to go today," explained Kenny. It was clear that Kenny didn't want to go home; but for some reason or other, Ron had persuaded him that he had to go.

During a three-sided conversation, the superintendent explained to Ron that Kenny had decided to stay at camp until he finished the totem pole. Kenny showed plenty of enthusiasm for the idea and Ron was suddenly speechless. When he opened his mouth to speak, there was a lump in his throat and his eyes were moist to the point of unshed tears. -Mr. and Mrs. W. V. Webster of Downsview and Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Webster of Mimico, and Mr. and Mrs. D. S. Webster visited Mrs. Webster's home on Sunday.

We hear so much in these days of duties, obligations and privileges attendent on citizenship, that it behooves us to gather all the data relevant to it, that comes our way. With this in mind, our Bogarttown W.I. was especially glad to welcome Mrs. A. Boyd, Yonge St., as guest speaker at the July meeting, held at the Greenwood home. She approached citizenship from a somewhat different angle-that of the standing committees and showed how each of these should be made to contribute to good citizenship. The health of the community which as people go out from it to mingle in the world is reflected in the health-moral, physical and mental-of those with whom they come in con-

Education must not be restricted to that of the schools. There is the education of heart and spirit which compasses not just a community or a province, but rather the welfare of the world.

Agriculture—our basic industry on which the world is leaning more and more, should be given its rightful place in the sun. Its aims and opportunities studied and kept before the people who only think about it if deprived of any of its benefits.

And we women should be conscious of our power as citizens with the franchise. If we used that power to compass the things we want and to displace the evils we abhor, no power on earth could stand against us.

Citizens should be giving as well as getting.

This is only a short and imperfect resume of a talk that will long linger in our memories and influence our decisions. With Mrs. Boyd came Mrs. Richardson with a display of interesting antiques.

Her exquisite display of the art of stitching, from the plainest to the most involved, was appreciated by all-those who themselves are proficient in the art and those who, like myself, gaze on them as we used to on a problem in geometry and with as much hope of emulating one as the other.

An English church prayer book published in the 16 hundreds was something to see as was a sash, some 300 years old, similar to that worn at the investitures of the Order of the Garter. Exquisite lace and drawn work were also on display.

A luncheon cloth done by a Mexican girl of drawn work, entirely with the needle, showed the scope of that small instrument. A Paris gown of braided chiffon of 100 years ago was modelled by Mrs. Frank Williams and other articles too numerous to mention were displayed to our admiring and appreciative eyes.

Miss Lenore Starr gave a fine report of the District Annual, Miss Edith Kay gave a piano solo which was much appreciated and your scribe sang "Canada Ever", whether appreciated or not is not for me to say.

A contest-word finding-was part of the program and the roll-call, "How to best help our new citizens", was well responded to.

God Save the King brought the meeting to a close after which people relaxed and sipped tea and ate sandwiches and cake and enjoyed the social half-hour which always follows such a gathering.

I forgot to mention that Mrs. Elmer Starr gave a report on the prizes given to the pupils of Bogarttown school who tried the Temperance examinations. These prizes were bought with money donated by the W.I.

One of the delightful things about writing a column like The Common Round, is the kindness of readers who send me items corelative to what I write. I received one such last week from Mrs. Howard Cane. Motoring down from Cody in Wyoming with her son and daughter-in-law, they came upon a lovely little lake and found themselves-where?-at the foot of the rainbow? No! They were in the end of it! Over and around them flowed this transparent, irridescent glory of many colors. It shimmered and glittered over them, turning them into semblances of figures in a stained glass window. My joy in hearing of this experience was great for it confirmed my never wholly

Mrs. Cane also told me that a man at the same lake had had the wonderful experience of seeing four rainbows at one time. One can hardly imagine the loveliness of such a sight.

It is a human tendency to blame everything and everybody but ourselves for our failures.

Jack complains about his working conditions, his boss and everyone he deals with on the job. Somehow it hasn't occurred to him that, although his environment is not perfect and should be improved, the main cause of his trouble lies within himself.

Reports show that the commonest cause of job failures is not tack of technical skill, but poor personality qualities-particularly a non-cooperative attitude, unreliability and lack of initiative.

Those who have the opposite qualities - cooperativeness, dependability and driving initiative - are not blind to the defects in their environment. But instead of criticizing, you will find them trying to improve those defects through their own efforts.

Above all, you will find them trying to correct their own personal shortcomings. To such men the world offers the biggest rewards!

Most men who have won success because of their initiative also like to provide for their own and their families' future by their own efforts. Life insurance offers the most dependable way to do this.

Say it's tough getting the zipper off the Underwood this week. August comes up Monday. Schedules all down the line are being cleaned up. Monday wash-day washes up the lacrosse fireworks. Frank Courtney and the ladies wound up their regular grind-drip fashion-last Thursday. They await the word on play-off activity. Those stout chappies-I'm not referring to their waistlines-Ollie Gould and "Shorty" Turan, have their North York baseball appearances-such as they were-washed up, ironed and put away. The pair have their ears to the ground listening for some fast company to tangle with in an exhibition series. It's likely to be either Sutton or Stouffville, or both. By the way, both the latter clubs have bitten the dust in the tri-county playdowns, the former out before Port Perry, the latter before Sunderland.

I Told You So Department: Just as "Ceegars" McDonald predicted the Vets' softball machine received an overhaul and returned to normal operation. They put over a pair of wins last week. By the time this hits print could be it will be three in a row. We'll go for that, but hold, Aurora makes its first appearance locally Tuesday. It will be dog eat dog. Aurora must be upset and they haven't slipped so far, if the Vets have aspirations of taking over top slot. Neither club is likely to haul down its colors without a stiff fight.

No, no, spare us this. After being on the beam with three wins, Larry Sheffe, Matt Walsh and the lacrosse Redmen have been driven back to the near tail-end of the standing. They lost a close decision to Midland, something they should never have done. Our boys lacked fire and were below par. Of course the Midland netminder, Bruce Duncan, chose this night to do a real bang up imitation of "Kitty-Bar-The Door" to hold our men off. The Redmen make the long haul to Huntsvile Monday, civic holiday, and probably, measuring the strength of the Northern Hawks, won't be able to bring us back very glad tidings.

Ontario Lacrosse Association indicated earlier the first four teams in the race would go into the intermediate A playdowns, that probably will be Huntsville, Brooklin, Toronto, Ravinas and Maitlands. The last four teams in the standing drawing a B rating. The latter probably now will cover only three teams, Westmounts, Midland, Newmarket, as Port Hope threw in the sponge after being soundly rapped by our own Redmen. Playing real heads up lacrosse the Redmen could possibly walk off with the B group crown.

Pat Duncan making her first start of the campaign in Newmarket line-up at Barrie recently suffered a painful knee injury. Frank Courtney-Chuck VanZant and company have lined up an interesting benefit exhibition contest. It will pit the pick of the two Barrie teams, Valley's and Allandale against Newmarket. Proceeds to knock out kid doctor bill. Should be worth a trip to S.S. diamond tonight.

Next week's troubles or fun should we say: Tonight that benefit game. Friday evening, the baseballers will be in action-either Sutton or Stouffville, against the Turan-Gould combines. Monday Newmarket ladies hit the trail for exhibition contest in Cobourg. Might be a preview of P.W.S.U. activity. Lacrosse men away to Huntsville. Tuesday Lansing at the park with the Vets. Happy civic holiday.
